

The cold has settled in and winter has arrived. Why not explore our catalogue for some books to get you through?

The second part of our Beatles' collection continues to round out Paul McCartney's Archive Collection Series with Paul McCartney and Wings 1971-73 (Item 179) and Flowers in the Dirt (Item 177). Read about the off-stage lives of fellow bandmates Ringo Starr's in Another Day in the Life (Item 261) and George Harrison's in Live in Japan (Item 124).

For those autophiles who enjoy the open road and appreciate stunning photographs of restored vehicles, The James Flood Motoring Books are a perfect addition to your bookshelf. The Second James Flood Book of Early Motoring (Item 207), The Third James Flood Book of early Motoring (Item 209) and The Fourth James Flood Book of early Motoring (Item 208) are all from the definitive series by the largest body building shops of vintage cars, now no longer in existence.

We have a number of impressive sets that are sure to enhance any collector's bookshelf. The Collected works of Rudyard Kipling (Item 152), noted novelist and poet, are celebrated in the handsomely bound 28 Volume Burwash Edition set. Students of Australian History will have plenty to learn from Charles Manning Clark's Commemorative 6 Volume edition of A History of Australia (Item 59) and the full set of Historical Records of Australia (Item 130) which is complete with the rare folio volume, 'The Beginnings of Government in Australia'.

Our cover is one for the free spirited at heart. The freedom of the surf can be found in Tracks (Item 279), a look behind the scenes in Summer of Love (Item 174), a deep dive into the working of George Harrison's mind in Songs (Item 123) and finally, a celebration of American entertainer, mellow baritone Bing Crosby in The Story of the People's Most Popular Star, ... (Item 74).

With numerous illustrations. 1st edition, 3th issue complete with both half-titles, and with advertisements at end of both volumes dated January 1871. Previous owner's name on title-pages. Previous owner's book plate on inside of front covers. Some occasional foxing. Tear on pages 139/140 and small crude tape repairs to pages 309/310 and 311/312 not affecting text in Volume I. NOTE: Charles Darwin (1809-82), author of The Origin of Species, popularised the concept of evolution. He also set out the principles of the Natural Selection as its underlying method, a doctrine which, rejected for many years, has now been largely accepted in the light of a modern understanding of genetics. He was one of the most influential thinkers of his time. This work published in 1871, found harsher critics and thus sold fewer copies than Darwin's first book, The Origin of Species (1859). Victorian society found Darwin's theory of Natural Selection too difficult to swallow. The Victorians preferred the image of the 'ladder of improvement' versus the random branching of Darwin's tree. By the middle of the twentieth century his theories of Natural Selection were accepted and proved correct, thus enhancing the significance and importance of this first edition. $750
